HILLIFE

Volume III

1928

PUBLISHED BY
THE SENIOR CLASS
OF
CHAPEL HILL HIGH SCHOOL
CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA

FOREWORD

Although this volume of HILLIFE is smaller than those which have preceded it, we feel that we are not stepping down, but rather stepping up, since there was no annual published last year. We have attempted to portray in our little book the life of Chapel Hill High School as we see it, and we hope that our attempt will please you.

To Miss Ellen Camden Melick, whom we all love and honor for the way in which she has helped us during the past year, this the third volume of HILLIFE is dedicated.

They had no poet in the class,
And so they said to me,
"You see, you'll have to do it,
For there's no one else, you see."

So I looked about to size them up,
And see at any rate,
If I couldn't find a real bard
In the Class of '28.

And first of all, I thought, there's Ruth,
She's versatile enough;
But the stuff that she's composed of
Is not poetic stuff.

She can swim and dive and get an "A"
At almost anything;
But no one ever would admit
That he had heard her sing.

And running down the line, I came
To Best, whose mighty arm
Shall win the prize in feats of strength,
But has no power with verse to charm.

And then I came to Lacy Burch,
Who might write hymns to sing in church,
But would not care to take a fling
At this old school, its praise to sing.

Fred Koch could do it, but where is he?
Playing sweet music by the sea.

And so could Coker, if he chose,
But when he'd done it, goodness knows,
He couldn't read his verse at all,
It would be penned in such a scrawl.

"Ah, ha!" said I, "And why not Prouty?
He can put up a flag-pole, and I have no doubt he Could write a class poem. Its feet might be gouty."
But he'd too much to do, so I went on without he.

And with him, of course, I thought me of Lucy,
Who always does well in the line of athletics;
But then I reflected, "Oh, the deuce, he Cannot kick goal on the field of poetics."

No help for my poem I found in brute force;
Resort must be had to the ladies, of course.

And first I thought of Mary Lillian,
Who at my suggestion did call me a villian;
She has music enough in her soul, if you please,
But it all comes out on the ivory keys.

And Winston was busy with heavy research,
Or, as Mr. King calls it, her reading outside;
And so yet again I was left in the lurch,
Once more I moved on as I heavily sighed.

I tried them in turn, Wagstaff and Sloan,
Weaver, Whitaker, Kimball, and Lloyd,
But all were too ready this task to avoid.

And so I traveled far and near,
Until my feet were lame;
So now they limp in metres queer,
As slowly I come hame.

But ere I stop I seize a crutch
To help me to convey
What sometimes is my feeling,
Though it's not so strong today.

This is Robert Browning's lay:

Our schoolbooks to hell,
And their obsequies knell!
Boot, saddle, to horse and away!

'28, and who'll do it right now?
'28, and who's ripe for flight now?
'28, and here's in hell's despite now!
'28, '28, Chapel Hill!

History of the Class of 1928

IN the late summer of 1924, we became a class—a high school class with a name—a name that no other class ever had had or ever would have, 1928. We were an unwary, half-frightened group of freshmen as we entered into our new high school life. With Miss Mitchell as our home room teacher, we encountered English, Latin, Math, Science, and History in a mass. These some of us got to know, but not so well as we all did their teachers, Miss Gordner, Mrs. Lawson, Miss Graves, Mrs. Spruill, and Miss Whitley.

Besides these serious, solid substantials (I mean the studies), we had our clubs, the literary society, and student government. As this last was new to all that year, all classes, freshmen included, took an active part in it. We soon chose officers and a song, and received our colors, green and white, from the Class of '24. We took part in the usual Christmas festivities, and also the sports, basketball, baseball, tennis, and track, as they followed each other. Some of our members were among those who also played.

Before we realized it Father Time had overtaken us and we were sophomores. We now had Miss Atkinson in the place of Miss Mitchell. There were various other new teachers, and in general we found the work considerably harder. Some of us had already fallen by the wayside in our freshman year, and a few did likewise this time. Student government and the literary society, along with the sports continued. We were victors in inter-class basketball. Several boys made the football, basketball, and baseball teams, and the girls represented our class in basketball and baseball. During this year the Girls' Athletic Association was reorganized and great headway was made in the encouragement of sports. Before long this year was also past. Two down and two to go!

In our junior year we had Mr. Kerr at first, and then Miss Gilmore as our leader. Again we received some new blood and had different teachers. We were once more and by greater numbers represented on various school teams. We ordered and received class rings and made considerable fuss on both occasions. Then we considered we were about ready to be seniors, and before long most of us were.

This year marked the biggest change of all. Although, in many respects, things were very much the same as they had been before, yet there was always the feeling that this time was the last time. This was the last September or the last football or basketball season in high school. Added to this difference was that of a new administration and a number of new teachers. Then, due to this change, student government was abolished. And, of course, we were not altogether free from that high and mighty feeling peculiar to seniors.

As the year drew to a close, our activities increased until they were capped by commencement week. During this we had our Class Day and gave the "School-mistress," which was very favorably received, and then, on Thursday night, pocketed our diplomas.

It Won't Be Long Now

IT won't be long now until the rays of light from Chapel Hill penetrate the most remote corners of the earth. President Chase having recognized the great executive ability of Bob Coker, resigns in order that the University may share in the activities of the world under a very great leader.

Mr. Woollen gives up his position to Page and Prouty, professional business managers, with only one condition—that both must take their vacations at the same time, for one without the other is absolutely useless.

A school of aviation has been started by Fred Koch. The former Buccaneer and physics star has turned out many planes and passengers. It is known that President Coker is often in court for speeding, but that is nothing new, for Bob was always in a hurry about everything.

Another necessity in education, a school of oratory, has been established by Baxter Taylor, leading debater of the United States. Through this school many fine speakers have come to Chapel Hill. Senator Ira Dodsou, while on his campaign tour recently, spoke with as much magnetism as William Jennings Bryan. Mayor Ruth Ashmore will soon be here to tell us how she runs Chicago.

The Carolina Playmakers now are world famous under the direction of Alexander Farrar. Onyx Hunt, worthy business manager, has booked tours from London to Peking.

The main street is becoming more magnificent. A large hospital, of which Thelma Lloyd and Margaret Daniels are to be head nurses, is being built. Not far from the hospital one finds a spacious beauty shoppe, which is well cared for by Rena Belle Taylor.

Nobody in Chapel Hill ever goes broke any more, as the bank has Lacy Burch for its president. Nell Maddry, champion typist, is a great aid to the new banking system. Even the telephone company gives real service under Everett Rush, who hasn't any American history to study ponderously now.

Among the billboards we find one which states that the Kimball Circus is coming to town. Marjorie herself is to be ringleader, but that's not unusual. Betty Sloan, chief tumbler, naturally, is going to perform in her No. 11 shoes.

In the theater district one finds that at the Carolina, Glenn Best and Ida Vivian Weaver, star players of Hollywood, will appear in "Wait Till You See." The symphony orchestra, led by Ruth Hocutt, plays every evening at the Carolina.

A new city auditorium has the best ballet troupe in the Western hemisphere. It is headed by Carolyn Winston, premier danseuse. Mr. Benson Ray, manager of the auditorium, succeeded in getting many noted musicians to perform during the past year. Mary Lillian Correll, pianist, who recently made her first appearance in Berlin, has given many delightful evenings to the numerous enthusiastic audiences. Frances Wagstaff, star of the opera, is to give a concert while on a world tour (not a wonder, for Frances always helped Mr. Munch with the singing in chapel).

All these things you shall see as they happen in due course of time!

Last Will and Testament

Item I.—The Class of '28, with all due respect, wills and graciously bequeaths to the Class of '29 all senior privileges, colors, flower, and other accoutrements necessary for the sustenance of said Senior Class.

Item II.—To the Class of '29 we will our much-used ability to carry on class meetings and to conduct social functions.

Item III.—With unanimous pleasure we will to the Class of '30 our experienced form in hauling off all inter-class basketball games.

Item IV.—To the "Freshie" Class of '31 we will with solemn pensiveness our formal dignity, punctuality, and scholastic ability, in order that they in due course of time will become more serious.

Item V.—Benson Ray, having kindly consented, wills his stubbornness to Bill Prouty of argumentative fame.

Item VI.—Robert Coker, Jr., will at his own pleasure bequeath to any needy person a certain amount of obesity.

Item VII.—Mr. Alexander Patterson Farrar wills his diminutive name to Mr. James Wilber White, Jr.

Item VIII.—The large and uncouth feet of Everett Rush are willed by aforesaid person to Mr. Hubert Maddry, who is in dire need of a solid foundation.

Item IX.—Such nick-names as "Loosey," "Buzzard," "Luzzy," and the like, are willed to those members of the Class of '29 who would desire to popularized or bothered (take this "As You Like It") by such solemn conventions.

Item X.—Miss Mary Lillian Correll finally succumbed to the petition to give her fiery oratorical eloquence to Eliza Taylor.

Item XI.—Mr. Glenn Best, of pugilistic renown, wills his unsurpassed training in this cauliflower profession to our fast advancing "East End Kid," "Kid" Harold Garrett.

Item XII.—Miss Nellie Maddry, after very little deliberation, parts with her solemnity in behalf of Joseph Page.

Item XIII.—Miss Ruth Ashmore wills her quietness, placidity, bashfulness, and quiet reserve to Miss Penelope Wilson.

Item XIV.—As we draw near the close of this testament, it would be only fair for the Senior Class as a whole to will its wholehearted, light, jocular, and ever-present smiling disposition to any class that is so lucky as to be first to acquire this acumen of life-giving attribution.

Witness our hand and seal on this fifth day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-eight.

(Signed) THE CLASS OF 1928.

Football

For the last three years football has been on the slide. At the beginning of the season this year, everything seemed to be hopeless as far as football was concerned. However, under the faithful training of "Coach" Bob Gies and Captain Prouty, we managed to get a few boys interested enough to really get down to work.

Taking every item into consideration, i. e., weight, experience, reliability, etc., we had a very successful season, getting an "even break" on the scoring end.

The lineup was as follows:

WHITE	Left End	HICKERSON	Right Tackle
C. PENDERGRAPH	Left Tackle	BURCH	Right End
SMITH	Left Guard	PENNY	Right End
COKER	Left Guard	TAYLOR	Left Half

Boys' Basketball

Looking at the defeats stacked up against the victories, one might not think that the team had had a very successful season. But again we must remind you that the score doesn't tell everything. We feel that the coach did exceedingly well in spite of the green material he had at the beginning of the year.

Captain Page did fine work throughout the season and was high scorer of the year.

Girls' Basketball

The girls' basketball team had a very successful year. They went through the season without a defeat and were district champions.

The team was slightly handicapped by a late start, but Miss Neville, with the help of Dr. Lawson, modelled a smooth working group.

Captain Gooch, for her excellent work throughout the season, was re-elected for the coming year.

This makes the fifth successive year that we have won the district championship.

Debating Teams

The debating teams which represented Chapel Hill in the state debating contest this year, after the preliminary elimination contest had been held, lined up as follows: Affirmative, Mary Killou and Baxter Taylor, with Byng Farrar as alternate; negative, Ernestine Groves and Billy McKee, with Joe Couch as alternate.

Chapel Hill, Graham, and Sanford composed the triangle. Chapel Hill's negative debated at Sanford, where they lost, while our affirmative team won over Graham here. The subject was, "That Congress Should Enact the McNary-Haugen Bill." The debaters, under the direction of Mr. King, who coached them, studied the bill from all angles for a number of weeks before the debate, and thoroughly deserved the pins awarded them for their excellent work by Mrs. Jordan for the Community Club late in the year.

"HILLIFE CIRCUS"

Red Letter Days

SEPTEMBER, 1927

- 12—As an inauguration of the system of co-operation with the University, Mr. Mosher read about talents and explained the system. We then had a xylophone recital by Mr. Munch, who ran up and down the platform behind the row of new and old teachers, using the names of the respective notes as a hammer with which he produced an harmonious song of blushes, smiles, nods, and bows.
- 21—This day dawned bright and fair; but nothing worthy of note happened until the third period, when Mr. Preston, looking rather critically at Bob Coker, who was trying to explain the relation of density to specific gravity, said, "You remind me of the boy who, when his teacher asked him to tell what a vacuum was, scratched his head and said, 'I can't explain it, but I have it in my head.'" The class was in convulsions for some time. Much difficulty was experienced in continuing the recitation, and it has been stated with excellent authority that the effects of these now famous words were felt for several days. Henceforth, for the sake of convenience, this shall be called the "Vacuum Joke," and shall be indicated by "V. J."

OCTOBER

- 3—Today is memorable for the remarkable feat of strength that was performed on it. It happened during the fifth period that an evil spirit descended upon the Debating Club and instilled in it a great desire for evil. Accordingly, when its members perceived Mr. King, with a countenance of virtue, striding down the street, their desire to keep company only with their own great evil led them to barricade the door with a massive weight and to bind the whole 'round with triple brass. Presently Mr. King came up and tried the door. Finding some resistance, he rapped and called softly to learn the state of things within. All was silent. Smelling a rat, his righteous anger arose within him. He bent down and putting his brawny shoulder to the portal lifted it from its hinges, toppling over the massive weight and snapping the triple brass. Straightway the evil spirit fled through the window and all was peaceful.

NOVEMBER

During this month nothing extraordinary happened, and the wheels of state continued to turn with timely regularity and very little squeak.

- 23—A certain gentleman declared that he enjoyed Scott's Ivanhoe, because it gave him such a good picture of conditions during the futile period.

DECEMBER

- 1—The school was honored by a visit from the Venetian Glass Blowers. They performed many interesting things. Among them were the spinning of glass into thread, the manufacture of a glass sail boat without sails, and the creation of a wonderful ball which, so they said, would make a dime, if it were placed behind the ball, a dollar. However, Mr. King, who understands economic law very well, stated that he seriously doubted the truth of this.
- 3—"V. J."
- 8—Many tests! This morning we had a pep meeting in anticipation of tonight's basketball games. We had speeches from Mr. Munch, Baxter Taylor, Joe Couch, and "Lucy" Page, all of whom invoked that virtuous deity and patron saint, School Spirit. Mr. Munch urged each pupil to be present with their quarters. J. W. White and Fred Patterson, with the aid of their "rose," led the cheers, and Mr. Munch did the Highland Fling.*

- 22—"V. J." The Christian faith was in great peril at school. It was feared by some (Mr. Munch in particular) that the pupils would return to the worship of cast iron idols. The boiler broke, and as this meant an earlier and longer vacation, and the most familiar chant was, "Praise be! Praise be! Praise the boiler! Hallelujah!"

JANUARY, 1928

- 2—Today, when we returned to school, we found the boiler, poor thing, still cracked. The aforementioned peril increased.
- 19—Mr. King bought a new "Chevy." Up until this time he has been riding his old hobby, "Constitutional History," pretty hard, but he now rides his "Chevy." Whether or not he will cease to employ his old steed is impossible at the present time to ascertain.

6—"V. J."

FEBRUARY

- 27—The circus tonight was the culmination of the labors and the sweat of many days, and the toilers rolled in on the crest of the high wave of success with proud and salubrious spirits! The performance, coming after the triumphal march of our beloved menagerie, was a great success. Everything went off smoothly and seemed to please the audience highly. Only one thing was to be regretted, and that but temporarily. Miss Melick was speechless. We hardly believe this condition was due to her having been awed and wonderstruck by the performance, but there is no telling, for we think she had rather expected it to be awful.

MARCH

- 1—Today Mrs. Boney went uptown for cafeteria supplies herself.
- 13—Fatal 13th! After three weeks of absent-mindedness, Mr. Farrar surprised us by remembering our long overdue book report.

APRIL

See comment for November. ,

- 16—The floor of the platform of the auditorium was seriously damaged by the Graham Debaters, and it was there they made their deepest impressions.

MAY

- 25—This was the day of the great "weeney" roast. Most of those who were present probably have their own inward remembrances concerning it.
- 25, 28, 29—EXAMS.

JUNE

- 1-7—This whole week was rather one grand red letter day than five. Sunday's baccalaureate, Monday's flagpole dedication, Tuesday's most jovial class day, Wednesday's highly successful play, and Thursday's stately commencement—each and all demand more time and space than can be given here.

*Here "Highland Fling" does not mean Scotch extravagance.

We humbly apologize for this style. It has been infused in us during many hours spent in history class, and we find it hard to keep bits of it from cropping out now and then.

Where Go to College?

There are three major considerations that determine the Greatness, or the Potential Greatness, of an Educational Institution:

1. The Plant, including grounds, library, classrooms, laboratories and apparatus.
2. The Faculty.
3. The Student Body and its democratic standards.

In addition to the forty buildings already on the campus, the state of North Carolina is this year putting a half million dollars into new buildings and equipment. The Library of 151,000 volumes is spending $24,000 annually for books and periodicals.

There are eleven schools in addition to the College of Arts: Graduate, Law, Medicine, Engineering, Pharmacy, Education, Commerce, Public Welfare, Applied Science, Summer School, and Extension Division.

The Faculty numbers 165 of the country's best scholars.
